

Wilmington honors fallen son

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Marine Lance Cpl. Steven West was laid to rest on Monday afternoon.

The funeral liturgy was held at St. Thomas of Villanova Church and West's flag draped casket was delivered to Wildwood Cemetery by a horse-drawn caisson. Police and fire color guards, along with Marines and Patriot Riders escorted the caisson and led mourners down Middlesex Avenue to Wildwood. The procession passed underneath a mammoth United States flag, which was held up by the leaders of Wilmington and Billerica fire departments.

It was a moving graveside service culminating in the presentation of flags to West's parents, a three-volley salute fired by Marines, and the playing of Taps, with an echo.

West died at the age of 20 on July 2 while in Thailand. The family still does not know

Emergency closure of Shawsheen Ave (Route 129)

WILMINGTON - Due to an unexpected collapse of the drainage culvert under Shawsheen Ave (Route 129) at the Cranberry Bog between Blanchard Road and Cushing Drive, Shawsheen Avenue will be closed to thru-traffic from 5:00 a.m. Saturday morning July 19, 2008 through 10:00 p.m. Sunday evening July 20, 2008 for emergency repairs.

The closure may need to be extended due to unforeseen circumstances encountered during construction.

During the closure, signage will be in place which will detour truck traffic down Aldrich Road to Cook Street in Billerica, turning right onto Alexander Road and entering back into Wilmington via Hopkins Street. Passenger

No liquor for Mobil station Was it public safety or politics?

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - The Board of Selectmen denied a request for a transfer of a liquor license to Sonny's Mobil On The Run, located at 316 Lowell Street on the corner of Lowell Street and West Street, just a stone's throw from Interstate 93.

The license is currently held by B&B Liquor Station, which was formerly located on Main Street before closing its doors.

Board of Selectmen Chairman Michael Newhouse recused himself from the discussion due to information he had previously been exposed to in his capacity as an attorney. Though he had been assured by the Ethics Commission that he would have no conflict of interest in the matter, he wanted to avoid even an appearance of impropriety. In his stead, Selectman Raymond Lepore chaired the

One town, four presidents

Wilmington residents leading Rotary in four separate communities

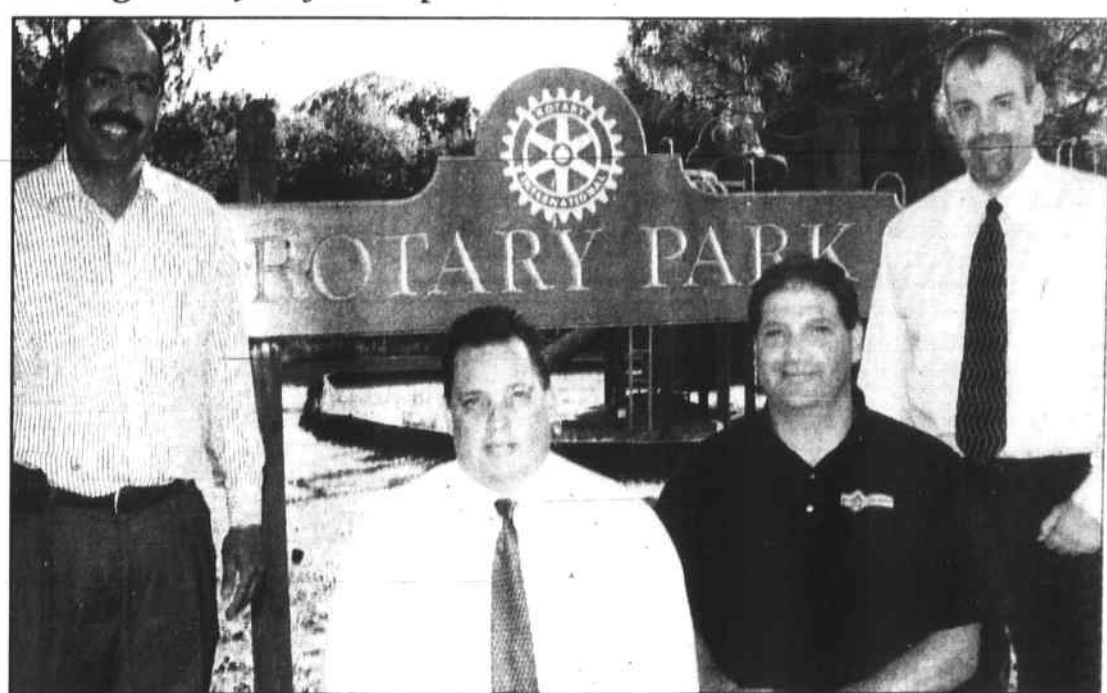

By MARCY RAGUCCI

WILMINGTON - The motto of Rotary is "Service Above Self," and Rotarians are business leaders whose main objective is service — in the community, in the workplace, and throughout the world.

Wilmington is proud to have not one, not two, not three, but four Rotary Club presidents living in town. Wilmington residents Bill Liston, Jim Major, Tony Giamberardino, and Steve Morad are serving as this year's presidents for the Wilmington, Woburn, Medford, and Peabody clubs respectively.

Although the statistics are not readily available, this very well may be the first time that four Rotarians living in a single town are serving as the presidents of four separate clubs simultaneously. This just

Green Team gears up

Would you like to help make a difference?

By CHARITY B. LEGVOLD

WILMINGTON - Although Monday night marked only the second meeting of The Green Team, the group sprinted into action recruiting new members, bringing in a guest presenter, and setting up a Yahoo Group to enhance communication and sharing of ideas.

Founded by Wilmington Residents Odette Kent, Lisa Ward, and Christine Woltag, The Green Team strives to help develop, promote, and implement recycling, renewable energies, and other "green" initiatives for the Town of Wilmington. Its purpose is to generate grassroots community interest and activities around these initiatives.

The Green Team hopes to interface with similar groups in other cities/towns, and has already begun to benchmark other communities for ideas and suggestions. Co-Founder and Director of Public Relations Christine Woltag said they don't want to re-invent the wheel. They have seen great ideas from other towns like Tewksbury, with its strong recycling committee, and Salem, with its hybrid transportation policy, and they hope to find other successful ideas to incorporate into their plans.

Co-Founder, and Secretary, Lisa Ward said, "We have been researching the idea of forming the Green team for months,

Ostler decorated

WWII Veteran receives medals

TEWKSBURY - Leon Ostler, 89 of Wilmington was honored Tuesday night at the Board of Selectmen's Meeting at Tewksbury Town Hall for outstanding Military service during World War II. He was awarded long awaited battle medals and also received a citation from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts State Legislature. Representative James Miceli and his staff, Tewksbury Veterans Officer James Williams, and Ostler's daughter Lee O'Leary and his grandchildren Samantha and Blaine O'Leary were on hand to honor the heroic veteran.

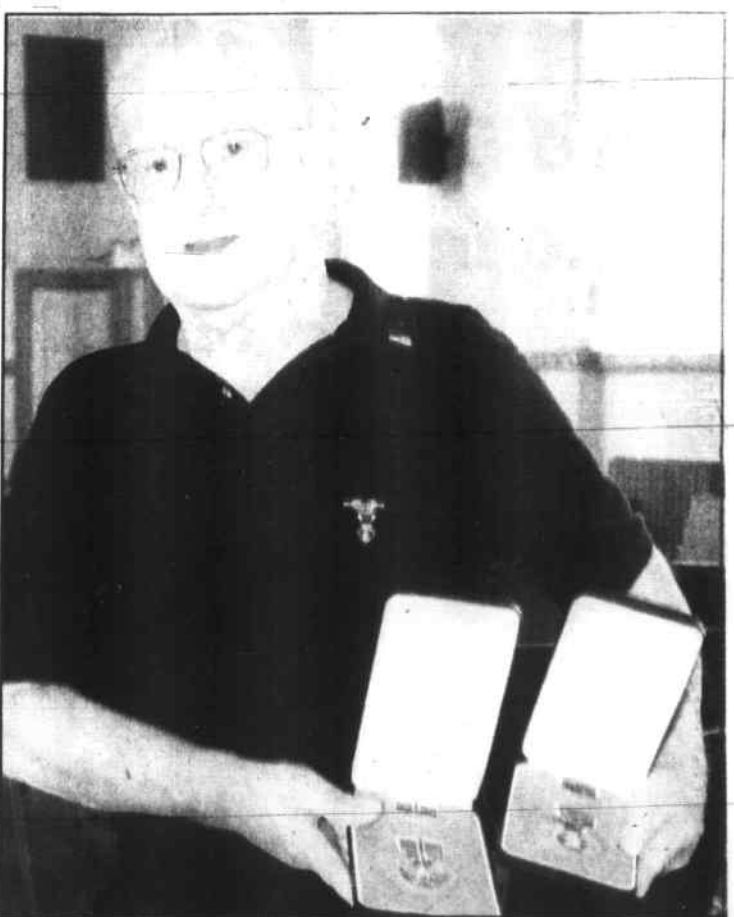

Ostler was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in action on April 9, 1945 in Benghousing, Germany, the Bronze Star Medal for Meritorious Achievement serving with Company C 23rd Armored Infantry Battalion 7th Armored Division in the European Theatre of Operation, European-African-Middle Eastern Campaign Medal with four Bronze Service Stars, Combat Infantryman Badge 1st Award, WWII Victory Medal and the Honorable Service Lapel Button WWII.

"The true heroes are in the ground", Leon said modestly as he received his medals. Ostler was a Sergeant with the 7th Armored Division, and also served with the 819 Aviation Engineers and two of his brothers served under him. The war took him all over Europe, Africa and the Middle East. He saw action at some of the most famous battles of WWII including Normandy, Northern France Rhineland and Central Europe.

what the cause of death was. The Marine Corps has not released any information regarding the death, declaring the case under investigation.

West attended Wilmington High School and Billerica High School and enlisted in the Marines in 2006, right out of high school.

He had recently been stationed in Okinawa, Japan, but was on a goodwill tour in Bangkok, Thailand with the 3rd Marine Expeditionary Force Band at the time of his death.

Universally regarded as an exceptional musician, West performed with many Strings Attached programs, including Wilmington's and with the Lowell Philharmonic Orchestra as a teenager. He played electric bass, acoustic bass, and guitar.

During the enlistment process, Steven was selected, by audition, to be a member of the United States Marine Corps Band. After Basic Training at MCRD Parris Island, Steven attended the Armed Forces School of Music in Little Creek, Virginia. He was a member of the renowned III MEF (3rd Marine Expeditionary Force) Band, based in Okinawa, Japan, whose task was to perform for foreign dignitaries all around the Pacific Rim. Steven recently performed on the island of Iwo Jima for the 60th Anniversary of the battle that turned the tide in WWII. Steven was proud to be a Marine and serve his country, he was especially proud recently when he earned his "Expert Rifleman Badge" while serving in Japan.

West made a point of calling his mother on her birthday in June, and then spoke to his family again less than weeks prior to his death to tell his them about his upcoming trip to Thailand. He told his family not to worry; he'd take plenty of pictures during the trip.

West is survived by his mother Jacqueline S. (O'Hara) and her husband Dennis Rooney of Wilmington, formerly of Billerica, and his father David and his wife Rose West of Nashua, NH, formerly of Tewksbury. He also leaves three younger brothers, Dennis, James, and Cullen Rooney, ages 7, 5, and 4, and a large extended family.

Services were held for Wilmington's Lance Cpl. Steven West on Monday afternoon. He was brought to Wildwood Cemetery in a horse drawn caisson (above).

His family was presented with United States flags by representatives of the U.S. Marine Corps.

E BAY & TAXES

Buy an item or two on eBay, and the Internal Revenue Service doesn't really care (though your state might like you to pay sales tax). But if you sell on the auction website, you are liable for taxes on any profit you make.

The IRS probably won't go after casual, now-and-then sellers, but anyone who sells this way regularly, even a hobbyist, is expected to pay up. What is the gain? Generally, the difference between original cost and the selling price. If the item is inherited, it gets a stepped-up price-its value at the death of the giver. Check the estate-tax return for a value listed, or have an expensive item appraised when you get it. Occasional sellers cannot deduct a loss.

Run an eBay business and you can deduct losses and deductions-but you are also liable for self-employment tax and are expected to collect sales tax on items sold within your state.

Questions about what taxes you owe? We've got the answers you need at attending Green Expos, as well as community forums, and look forward to growing the group and making positive changes to Wilmington." Last winter they benefited from learning and networking experiences with Healthlink and the Massachusetts Technology Collaborative.

They hope to take what they've learned and provide education for the community through talks, forums, and fairs, as well as through posting content on the town of Wilmington's website.

Green Team Co-Founder, and Director of Community Outreach, Odette Kent, stated, "Years ago, Wilmington had a recycling committee, and we are hoping to re-ignite past community interest and activities around recycling, as well as other green initiatives." Kent noted that among the twenty people that attended Monday's meeting she was pleased to notice several members of the former recycling committee.

Woltag was pleased that the second meeting drew in even more support from the community than the first meeting. Several members of the Wilmington High School Recycle Committee joined The Green Team along with some environmentalists and also teachers that are interested in "green" projects. The group welcomed Quincy Vale, Founder and CEO of PowerHouse Enterprises, a builder of environmentally friendly modular homes.

"The Green Team's vision is that through reducing, reusing, and recycling waste, as well as the adoption of renewable energies, we will not only increase revenues and reduce operating costs for our town, but also help the environment, and improve the well being of our citizens," said Woltag.

At that meeting, a presentation by RecycleBank's New England Region Sales Representative Anthony Casali provided a potential way to encourage residents to recycle. In RecycleBank's program, residents recycle and place the materials in a cart that is equipped with a Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) chip that connects to the homeowner's account identification code. Each week when recycling is collected the carts with RFIDs are scanned and weighed right at the curb. The system records the weight, converts it to points, and credits that amount directly to the homeowner's account. A recycling homeowner can be rewarded with up to $35 per month in credits they can then redeem for discounts and rewards at hundreds of participating businesses.

RecycleBank is one of many "green" programs The Green Team plans to investigate. Kent mentioned an initiative by Reading Light (International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives) that awards grants of $2,000 for communities to study their own carbon footprint by providing the software, support and framework for the study. She also mentioned that Arbitri Paper Recovery might make a presentation to The Green Team when monthly meetings resume in September.

The Green Team encourages Wilmington residents interested in becoming involved and working on "Green" issues to attend a public meeting. Although The Green team is a sub-committee of the League of Women Voters of Wilmington, residents interested in joining The Green Team are not required to be members of the League of Women Voters.

The group set up a Yahoo Groups account to facilitate communication and encourage collaborative cooperation between the monthly meetings. Residents interested in more information or in joining the group can go to <http://groups.yahoo.com/group/WilmingtonGreenTeam/join> or send email to WilmingtonGreenTeam-subscribe@yahoo.com

Letters to the editor

Good people during difficult times

Dear Editor:
I am writing to express my gratitude to the members of our community and our neighbors whose ways of care, comfort and concern are admired and deeply valued.
Thank you to the police departments, particularly the Wilmington Police Dept. and to the officer who loaded my son's disabled bike into the trunk of his cruiser and gave my son a ride home last week. Thank you to the Winchester Police and Middlesex Sheriff's officers, who once again have stepped up to the plate to take care of my family and spend time with us through the most difficult of circumstances with the sudden passing of my cousin. My cousin collapsed and died Monday morning and official cause of death is yet to be determined. Nine months ago, he was the victim of a home invasion where he was shot in the chest and survived that initial attack. His older brother was not as fortunate and died from a gunshot wound to the head. Because Bryan survived, he was able to provide law enforcement with the identity of the perpetrator who killed Christopher and they caught the man the very same day, keeping a dangerous violent criminal off the streets of Massachusetts. The murder trial is scheduled to begin in September 2008. Thank God for grand jury testimony, as Bryan is no longer able to talk to us and he was the sole witness to this unspeakable crime that has now become more of a compounded tragedy beyond belief. We are shattered and devastated, but we are strong through our love, faith and determination.

Thank you so very much to the folks at Rocco's Restaurant. When I called and said that I needed to order large function platters of food to bring to my grieving family, they never hesitated to make sure that I was taken care of, no questions asked. An order my size would usually take a restaurant hours to prepare. But when I told them I had less than an hour to work with, Michelle, the cook, was right on it. The staff was able to coordinate this request within the time frame I needed, fresh, hot and ready to serve. Many people were visiting at my aunt and uncle's home when the food arrived and all commented on how wonderful and delicious everything was. When I told them where I had ordered from, they all said that they loved Rocco's, too. So I think I can speak for all of us family and friends of Bryan in extending a big note of appreciation to those who work at Rocco's Restaurant.
I am so thankful for such acts of kindness; it's not just a job to those who would be there for us, no matter who we are and willing to go out of their way to be helpful. Those little considerations are everything and they go a long way. It's these things that make Wilmington a great town to live in and I am proud to be part of it.

Sincerely,
Tracey A. MacNeill

Nation of Compassion

Dear Editor,
I believe in Social Justice. There are two million refugees in Iraq and the growing crisis in the Middle East is out of control. I urge the State Department and related agencies to help these Iraq citizens who are in dire need. Our country must act as the best of whom we are. A Nation of Compassion, a nation who cares about people, a nation who believes that service to humanity is the best work of life.

The United States of America needs to welcome these vulnerable and displaced people into this great country.

PEACE...

Betsy's Best Bets

by Betsy Woods McGuire

Time to Rethink and Shrink

For the earth that breeds the trees breeds cities too, and symphonies.
(John H. Wheelock)

As much as I love all the big deal places and events, like the Italian festivals in the North End, August Moon in Chinatown, walking down Newbury Street or Charles Street, or poking around Quincy Market and Faneuil Hall, I have my little hideaways that I savor more. Don't you just love the small and hidden, those esoteric places that feel so not-mainstream, so smug and secretive, as if belonging to a secluded inner circle.
Not long ago a friend of mine that I hadn't seen in many years e-mailed me to say he would be in Boston on business and had one free day, could we meet. From his hotel I gave him simple "walking directions" to the Boston Common where we met up. After the initial hugs and greetings and excitement, from there I took him to a neighborhood café on the outskirts of the South End. Right in the middle of our non-stop conversation and catching up, he stopped, looked around and said, "Wait, how do you know about this place?" That's what I love, when an otherwise typical social setting turns into a rendezvous of sorts just because of "where you are." Two friends can sit and talk and reminisce anywhere, but the right atmosphere can make those moments memorable.
The smallest and least known neighborhood in the city of Boston has to be Bay Village. Looking back I can't recall ever knowing anyone who lived there or went there or was familiar with the area. The reason, I think, is mostly because Bay Village was not a family-oriented kind of place. Infamous may be too strong a word so let's say Bay Village has a "colorful" past. During WWII when no one was openly gay, clubs in Bay Village had female impersonators and waiters with coifed hair and make-up. The notorious Punch Bowl Nightclub attracted a wild and rowdy gay crowd - raids by the "vice squad" were common. During prohibition there were many speakeasies. And then there's Jacques Cabaret. Since 1938, initially popular with actors and producers from the nearby Theatre District, Jacques is still going strong in spite of controversy and complaints. Over the years, at times, the club has earned itself a scandalous reputation. In 1942 the Coconut Grove Nightclub, which burned to the ground killing close to 500 people, was located in Bay Village. A sidewalk plaque at the site reminds us of the tragedy.

But that was then. To tell you the truth I really think Bay Village's past has added a certain folklore and a kind of mystique to this small, tight-knit, alluring neighborhood.
Consisting of only six square blocks and about 700 residences, Bay Village is inconspicuous. Similar to Beacon Hill but without the pretense or scale, Bay Village seems like an historical compound that was "inserted" right in the middle of bustling Boston.

Last week as I was walking down Church Street into the heart of Bay Village, my eyes were pulled up toward a lush and colorful rooftop garden. Bright bushy purple flowers filled the planters that lined the railing - small ornamental bushes and several dwarf trees added to the contrast against brick and wrought iron. Tiny white "Christmas" lights freckled the space. All the streets are narrow and shady with gas lamps, brick sidewalks and cobblestone alleys. Although there are some grand homes from the Federalist and Greek Revivalist period, most of the residences are row houses with window boxes and attractive, inviting front doors, no more than three stories high. The neighborhood is quiet and uncluttered, almost eerily out of sync with the rest of the city. At one crossing, a mini-patch of land, neatly fenced, has been transformed into a shadowy, cool and tranquil meditation place, with an unlocked gate, two short benches and a modest lion's head waterfall.
My very favorite "small" restaurant (maybe the smallest restaurant on earth) is right in the center of Bay Village - only five seats, floor-to-ceiling windows on all sides, touching the sidewalk, fresh home cooked food. This is a good place to take a break masquerading as a regular, that is, if you can get a seat.
If you walk out to Tremont Street, and then loop around toward Park Square, around the corner is a small sunken sanctuary-type neighborhood park that jumps out at you. No bigger than a three-car garage, tapered down at one end, this oasis of peace and prettiness perfectly complements the community. The entire perimeter is planted with tall perennials - raised beds of pink phlox, yellow and orange day lilies, blue hydrangeas, huge hibiscus, white daisies and rose echi-nacea. A royal blue tin birdhouse swings from a low tree branch, a birdbath is filled by a waterfall. A two-seater bench has inlaid tile drawings on top, the ground is covered with red brick.

Every time I'm in Bay Village I think I want to live there. Talk about location, location, location. It's adjacent to the Theatre District, next to the South End, within walking distance to Chinatown and the North End - everything you need is outside your door, no car necessary. Yet the streets of Bay Village feel private, almost undiscovered, unlike the other more well-known neighborhoods.
Think about it, living in the city is so much healthier. You walk everywhere, use stairs, support local business - it's alive, exhilarating and diverse. No lawns to mow, no snow to blow, no gardens to weed. A window box could meet my need.

Rolling Thunder

Not long ago, I woke up in the middle of the night. Thunder was shaking the house and the lightning flashes were illuminating our room even with all the blinds closed. It's that time of year. Some dogs, Rover included, don't seem to be concerned about the noise or flashes but other dogs are. I've heard from a number of people in the last couple of weeks about their dogs reacting to the storms.
This is a time of year that a lot of dogs run away or get lost, become destructive or even hurt themselves as they panic in reaction to the storms. Most can learn not to react but it takes time and patience. Here's a process we've used.
First it's important that Rover has a safe place in the house. It might be a crate or a closet or a bathroom. It's best if the place is in the interior of the house and not on an exterior wall. The darker and quieter the safe place the better. You can have quiet music playing there. Classical music or a CD such as "Through a Dog's Ear" can help Rover relax.
It's also important that Rover is viewing you as the leader of the pack. He needs to take his cues from you and if he's not doing that when everything is calm and relaxed, he's not going to when he's excited or stressed. If he isn't responsive to you, work on your leadership skills first.
Get a good recording of thunder. I've used "Suburban Thunder" which I bought from http://www.f7sound.com/ I've also been told that it's available to download from iTunes. It was recorded in Tampa, the thunderstorm capital of the world and it is amazing how realistic it is. They also have a recording of fireworks. Typically if a dog has thunder phobia he'll also react to fireworks.
Start the process when things are calm and quiet. Teach Rover to go and stay in the "safe" place when there is nothing going on. He needs to be comfortable spending time there by himself. You can leave treats or a favorite toy in the safe place for him. When he goes in there, don't interact too much with him. You can give him a calm, quiet "Good boy" when he goes in there but the idea is to get him used to going in and relaxing by himself.

Start playing the thunder recording at very low volume, slowly increasing the volume. Watch Rover, as soon as you see him start to react, lead him to the safe place and tell him to stay. Again, don't interact with him too much, get him settled down and then just stay near by. Don't talk to him and DO NOT try to comfort him.
Comforting, which is our natural tendency, will make things worse. Rover won't understand the words; he only knows the tone of voice. "Don't worry Rover it's OK" is the same thing as "Good Boy your right to be worried". Just stay near by, ignore him, and go about your business. If he's still nervous and won't settle down give him a quiet correction to let him know he's being silly. Don't escalate the correction as that can increase his distress. If you can't get him to settle down you may need to lower the volume or work more without playing the recording at all. You may also need to reevaluate your relationship with Rover. Is he really looking to you for guidance and listening to your instructions?
Once you are able to get him to settle down in the safe place, work on increasing the volume of the recording. Each time he starts to react, lead him to the safe place and get him to settle down. This needs to be done over and over until he goes to the safe place without you directing him and you can play the recording at full volume.
This process can sometimes be fairly quick, a matter of days, or it may take much longer. Again, only give him praise when he's calm and relaxed. If he's nervous you can try a quiet correction, but its best not to acknowledge him until he settles down.
Once he is going to the safe place on his own and remaining calm with the volume all the way up, then you need to work on separating from him or not going near there. Work up to going outside. He will be home, by himself, when the thunderstorms come. So you need to replicate as much as possible the actual situation.

The best time to work on this is before the storm season begins so you have more control of the storms via the recording. If you start the process now, you are likely to have setbacks as the storms will arrive when you are not home, but it's still worth working on. The only time you can teach Rover is when you are there. There is no magic wand for changing the way Rover feels when the storms happen. Patience, consistency, remaining calm and taking the time to teach him is the best solution.
Most dogs can learn to not react to the storms, but Rover will only take his directions from you if he views you as his leader. This is where you need to start the process.

If your Rover reacts to thunder, he is liable to also react to the fireworks during Fourth of July celebrations. Keep him inside. You can try distracting him with a favorite toy or game or inside activity, such as petting or brushing, if he enjoys those activities. Another option, if he does respond to your direction, is to take him outside on leash to watch. Correct him for starting to get worked up and let him know he's being silly. It's important that you remain calm and in control.
If you need help, contact us. We've guided numerous people and dogs through the process. Don't let Rover's thunderstorm phobia continue. It typically won't get better on its own. Help him learn that it's just noise and nothing for him to worry about. When he learns to relax and remain calm, you can relax and not worry about what he's doing when you're not home. We all know the results... Happy Dogs, Happy Families.

Local children learn the 3 "R's" at Look What I Made

NORTH READING - Summer fun can also be educational. At Look What I Made Pottery and More in North Reading, fourteen area children attended the first summer workshop of the year. "Color My Garden" had a dual focus stressing both the enjoyment of decorating and caring for our gardens and the wildlife within it, as well as caring for the world outside of our yards. While making many unique masterpieces such as bird feeders, hanging tree twinkle strings, bird houses, wind chimes, terra cotta pots and the ever popular "garden gecko", our attendees also planted seeds and flowers. In the midst of all this creativity, they expanded their knowledge of recycling (reduce, re-use, recycle), conservation of energy and water, the negatives of littering, and an overall appreciation of this earth and its resources. Super Stop and Shop and Shaws in North Reading donated cloth grocery bags to our day campers showing their support of trying to cut down on the use of plastic grocery bags.

The entire group left with smiles, a bag of incredible garden adornments and promises to be more aware and involved in protecting our resources.

On June 1st, Wilmington resident, Therese Pazdziorko, purchased Look What I Made with hopes of expanding prior owner, Sarah Kurchians vision of a fun and affordable art resource in this area. Look What I Made is a walk in paint-hosts anytime painting of both interesting and functional pieces, birthday parties, adult parties, local group events, off-site functions, fund raising, and custom orders and gifts. Pazdziorko hopes to expand into new areas offering unique and diverse workshops for both children and adults. "I love to see the happiness and intensity that comes along with creating a piece of pottery" she says. "That's why I bought the studio. I've spent many happy hours there as a customer alone, with family and at informal get-togethers. Every single piece that comes out of the kiln is beautiful and makes me smile. I only wish that I could encourage more adults to pick up a paintbrush and find that joy. That's one of my goals."

There are adult and children's workshops scheduled throughout the summer including Imagine That!, Grrrrreat Gifts, Harry Potter, Olympics Week and Me! A visit to the website, lookwhatimade.net, will give more specifics as well as store hours.

Jeff Corwin discovers T.H.E. FARM in Tewksbury

Discovery Channel highlights horse therapy in upcoming episode

By JAYNE W. MILLER

TEWKSBURY - Parents and Children all over the Merrimack Valley know what's special about the Tewksbury Hospital Equestrian (T.H.E.) FARM. Now Jeff Corwin fans will find out too when the Discovery Health Channel airs an episode featuring the farm, its instructors, and two special students.

Jeff Corwin, a Massachusetts native and award-winning Animal Planet host, visited his home state to learn about the work going on at T.H.E. FARM. Two students, Jessica Sutton from Westford, and Zachary Sobolewski from Medford, will be featured in a segment on Discovery Health's Continuing Medical Education (CME) program, "Pets and People: The Power of the Health Connection." The program will premiere on Sunday, July 20 at 9:00 a.m. In preparation for the production, Discovery Health's cameras spent two days with the students, their families and their instructors. Corwin participated in Jessica and Zach's therapeutic riding lessons at T.H.E. FARM in Tewksbury and worked with their instructor, Ilana Greenberg.

The segment will focus on the profound physical, emotional, and psychological effect that horses and equine-assisted therapy can have on students.

Greenberg, 31, earned her Masters in Occupational Therapy at Tufts University's Boston School of Occupational Therapy. Greenberg combined a life-long love of horses, she began riding at 9 years old, with a career in occupational therapy after a serious car accident put her in a coma for ten days and gave her a traumatic brain injury. She had brain surgery for her 22nd birthday and is left only with the loss of vision in one eye. That accident, however, crystalized her career goals. After completing her graduate work and working in traditional OT settings she joined T.H.E. FARM in 2002 where she helped develop the hippotherapy program.

T.H.E. FARM, Inc. is a non-profit organization providing therapeutic equestrian programs to the clients of the Tewksbury Hospital as well as public riding programs and special events to individuals of all abilities. Located on State Hospital grounds along Livingston Street, largely donations, fundraisers, and fees support the organization, as such therapies are not covered by insurance in Massachusetts.

Working with the Discovery Channel was a special treat for Greenberg, who worked with Jeff Corwin the most on the day the film crews were in Tewksbury.

"I was really lucky. He side-walked with me [helping the riders], and he interviewed me while we went on a trail ride and walked on a trail. He knows about horses in general and he asked lots of questions about our work," said Greenberg.

The first day of filming had Corwin and crews interviewing the families of Jessica Sutton and Zachary Sobolewski at their homes.

"We have seen tremendous improvement in her self esteem. It has helped with her posture, made her more conscious of her walking, her confidence has improved, and her attitude toward her disabilities has improved," said Sutton. "One of the things that happens when someone becomes disabled is they learn all that they cannot do. But this is something she can do. With therapeutic horseback riding, the horse doesn't care that she is disabled. This gives the disabled person control, to control a 1,000-pound animal. And it gives her something to look forward to every week. She gets up in the morning, and wants to know, 'am I going to ride today?'"

Working with the Discovery Channel was a thrill. The film crew sat in the back of a pickup truck to capture the action at T.H.E. Farm. Jeff Corwin interviewed Jessica while she was riding and asked her about her disabilities and what she got out of therapeutic riding.

"It was a pretty amazing process to watch," said Sutton. "It's an opportunity you just don't miss out. We're all looking forward to watching it Sunday. It's given her a sense of freedom from her disabilities. For 30 minutes nobody judges her, nobody sees her as being disabled. The horse is very patient, it's freedom for a disabled person, it's a gift."

"It was neat to see how the actual production of it all went," said Greenberg, adding that the production was most interested in how individuals benefit from therapeutic riding and finding out why horses are so compelling from a therapeutic standpoint. "It was just neat to know that we're making a difference and that we're educating others now."

Therapeutic riding and hippotherapy are used for adults and children with a wide range of health issues, from behavior and attention disorders, to mental illnesses such as bipolar disorder and schizophrenia, as well as autism, pediatric developmental disorder, physical handicaps, and more.

"It's amazing to see how one horse can affect so many people in a positive way," said Greenberg, calling the progress her students make 'astounding.'

reasons hippotherapy helps students, in particular the degrees and direction of the movement of the horses' pelvis parallels movement patterns in humans. The horse's walk provides sensory input through movement, which is variable, rhythmic and repetitive. The resultant move-children with sensory disorders, a horse and a barn are rich in sensory stimuli; smells, sounds, touch, feel. The consistent movement stimulates a child with autism. The horse provides rhythmic movement, which in turn, provides the body with input it needs to learn. I can have them cruise around on the horse and then introduce a spelling game or a problem solving game. Additionally, the kids are building self-confidence and self-esteem because they are in control of a large, mighty animal."

According to the American Hippotherapy Association, hippotherapy can improve balance, posture, mobility and function and may improve psychological, cognitive, and behavioral and communication functions for clients of all ages. Clients who stand to benefit from hippotherapy may have a variety of diagnoses including Cerebral Palsy, Multiple Sclerosis, Developmental Delay, Traumatic Brain Injury, Stroke, Autism and Learning or Language Disabilities. That said, the Association notes that hippotherapy is not for everyone and that all potential students must be evaluated on an individual basis by specially trained health professionals.

"It was a really wonderful experience working with [the Discovery Channel]. I hope a lot of people will get to see the show. The more we educate people about hippotherapy and therapeutic riding the more people will use these therapies," Greenberg told the Crier.

The program will also air Sunday, July 27, 2008 and Saturday, August 9 at 8:00 a.m. and on Saturday, August 16.

More information about T.H.E. FARM, its mission, and opportunities for donations and volunteering are available at the organization's website, www.t-h-e-farm.org.

Jeff Corwin, award winning Animal Planet host, visited T.H.E. FARM in Tewksbury for an upcoming episode of the Discovery Channel's "Pets and People: the Power of the Health Connection."

For kids with difficulty walking, therapeutic riding improves gait patterns through the exercise, stimulating hip and leg muscles, while being a lot of fun.

Greenberg identifies several ment responses in the client are similar to human movement patterns of the pelvis while walking.

"A kind, non-judgmental, soft cuddly animal is another huge factor," said Greenberg. "For

Stretch your reading dollars at Book Store Next Door

WILMINGTON - Join the regulars and the "new kids on the block" to discover how far your reading allowance goes at the Friends of the Library's Book Store Next Door, 183 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington.

If you know any procrastinating students, we still have many books on the school reading lists - much cheaper than last-minute full price.

To help you "go green," purchase a bright blue canvas bag ($10.00) for in-store stocking up on your book store finds.

Don't forget books on tape or CD for your vacation treks. And if you're tired of the same old reading options at your summer retreat, consider restocking from the book store and donating your current libraries.

Be sure to ask for a tax form. Your dollars are returned to the library in many ways; pick up a Friends brochure to find out the specifics.

The book store is open Wednesday evenings, 4:00 - 7:00 and Saturdays, 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m., throughout the summer. Contact Leslie Dietrich, 978.657.6536 or lesd4@verizon.net for volunteer opportunities or questions. Many thanks for your continued support - shopping and donating.

Grand prize for Cowdery

TEWKSBURY - Isle of Emerald Court resident, Jean Cowdery, along with her daughter Gillian, attended an all-day Alzheimer's Association Conference on June 28 at UMASS Boston. The conference was offered by a long list of sponsors at no cost to the participants. Over 300 people, comprised of those with memory loss, care partners, and family members, shared in the events of the day. Medical experts provided the latest information on promising treatments and new research. A panel of people with memory loss and their care partners shared strategies for living fuller lives. Opportunities were provided for participants to find and build support systems for themselves and their care partners. There was also plenty of social time to meet others and find out how they were living with memory loss.

Jean looked down at her yellow steno pad as she started to write down her initial impressions of the day. Listening intently to each presenter she wrote copious notes on new information offering hope for this challenging disease. Jean reached for the 3x5" card at her table, Table #4, to write down a question. After carefully crafting each word, she got up and walked clear across the large, expansive sea of banquet tables to the woman with the microphone standing in the back of the room. With courage that is typical for Jean (who is a slight 5' tall and weighing about 100 lbs), she asked, "How are other kinds of memory loss [besides Alzheimer's] diagnosed?"

The presenter responded immediately with, "That's an excellent question," and proceeded to answer. Unfortunately, Jean no longer remembered where her seat was or what the answer had been. Her daughter arrived just in time to guide her back to her table.

As the day wound down, the final event included a prize raffle. Everyone was instructed to look under their chair to see if they had a number affixed to it. Jean checked her chair. Nothing. Jean started to look under an empty chair nearby when a woman offered her "Number 16." Because the woman insisted, Jean accepted. As the sixteen recipients approached the podium, Jean was told she was the grand prize winner! Others won baseball hats, t-shirts, and some luckier people won makeovers and massages.

After presenting all the other prizes they called out "Number 16." Jean stepped up to the podium to hear what her prize would be. She found out that she and a guest would be hosted by the Red Lion Inn in the Berkshires. The prize included a one night stay with dinner and breakfast for two. The prize also included two tickets to the Museum of Contemporary Art (MoCA) in North Adams.

Jean stepped up to the microphone one more time and announced, "The lady who gave me this ticket is going to be sorry!"

The Isle at Emerald Court will once again participate in the Alzheimer's Association Memory Walk 2008 and you can bet Jean will probably be there since walking is her favorite pastime.

A Night of Song aiding Ryan Breslin in his Eagle project

On Thursday, June 26th 2008, Ryan Breslin a Life Scout of Troop 56, Boy Scouts of America, held a Fundraiser at St Thomas', Villanova Hall. What a spectacular night! It was "A Night of Song". An all "A Cappella" night that included performances by "SoundScape", a Wilmington High School "a cappella" group and "Ball in the House", a professional "a cappella" group from Boston. Both groups donated their time to help out with Ryan's fundraiser. It was an overwhelming success as the place was packed and all that attended walked away cheering and smiling. Ball in the House is well known to Wilmington as they have performed many times over the past few years, entertaining the children at both the elementary schools and Middle School. Ball in the House (Dave, Jon, Aaron, Ryan and Dan) agreed to help out with the show because they are all great guys and continually give back so much to the community. It was also special for one of the members of Ball in the House, Dan

Szymczak, from Minnesota, who is also an Eagle Scout. Dan commented that when he first learned about Ryan's project, he knew he and the group had to help, as he understands what is involved to get to this point in scouting. Dan originally thought he was coming to help paint and he was all for it. Although he was gearing up to slap on some paint, Dan was a little relieved to find out that he would be sharing his voice and not his painting prowess. The proceeds from the night will be used to fund Ryan's Eagle Scout project which will refurbish the meeting areas, bathrooms, stairway and hallway leading to the Youth Center in the lower level of Villanova Hall.

Ryan wishes to thank all the Scouts who helped with the set-up and clean-up of the hall, the scout leaders who chaperoned the event, his fellow members of Soundscape, the guys from Ball in the House and all the people in the audience who helped make "A Night of Song" a special night he will not soon forget.

Bees pose winged danger to letter carriers

Although we are in the midst of the "dog days of summer," Postmasters Charles T. "Chuck" Nichols, Wilmington, and Joanna M. Louf, Tewksbury, reminded customers that sometimes letter carriers face threats through the air.

Bees and wasps can inflict pain and suffering on our employees and for those allergic to bee venom, the sting can prove to be fatal, they said, prompting their call for customers to watch for and remove bee nests at or near mail receptacles.

"Bee stings can be very painful," they said, and depending on the type of bee, it is possible that more than one sting can be inflicted.

"Our letter carriers want to provide the best service possible to customers. At the same time, they should not be subject to situations that endanger them. That is why we ask customers to restrain their dogs during mail delivery times and why I am now reminding residents that bees also present dangerous situations," they said.

They asked customers to try and keep bees from settling in or near mailboxes and to be especially vigilant if they have flowers in the general vicinity of mail receptacles.

They said if a large number of bees hover near flowers, trees, or shrubs, it is possible a nest is nearby. They urged customers to use caution when dealing with bees and wasps and noted their letter carriers would be "most appreciative" if the hazard is removed, reducing the threat of a sting.

Marissa and Kayla Blonigen had heard about Locks of Love, an organization that uses donated hair to make hairpieces for young people living with cancer treatments, from a friend. Right away they asked if they could also help a child in need. Their mother, Melanie, took them to hair salon and even joined in for the selfless effort. Marissa, age 8, cut off 14-inches. Kayla, age 7, cut off about 10.5-inches. Melanie cut off 12-inches.

When was the last time you checked to see if your bank fully insures your deposits? At Reading Co-operative Bank, our customers never have to wonder. Like most banks, we carry FDIC insurance to cover the first $100,000 in deposits. However, we also automatically offer our customers SIF insurance to cover every other dollar deposited with us. tary," said Representative Miceli.

Ostler has also begun working with a Legislative Intern in Representative Miceli's office, Breanna Leibman, on an interview for the Library of Congress Veterans History Project. The project aims to "collect and preserve personal stories and other documents from America's war veterans. And those American civilians who served in support of them."

The extensive interview covers his travels from building roads in England, to serving under General Patten, to the battles in France, to his heroic efforts that earned him the Purple Heart and Bronze star, and his coming home. Ostler says he left as a child and came back as a whole new person. "We were coming out of the Depression and we only had the shirts on our backs. We did not have too many options. Overseas we were using second hand guns and equipment at first."

In the interview, Ostler also talks about General Patten and wants it known that the poor things said about him are not true. "He was a tough guy, but we all loved to serve under him and trusted him. He was right there riding along with the tanks."

"This is a great opportunity for not only Leon," said

Leibman, "but all veterans to share their story with future generations. Everyone should know what these brave veterans went through, and the purpose of this project is for everyone to use and learn from their experiences."

Not only did Leon serve in WWII, he enlisted for the Korea war and was anxious to go back and fight, which is only a testimony to his spirit. The Medals that Leon Ostler received on Tuesday are long overdue. Every citizen is deeply indebted to him, and to all soldiers past and present, for their service to our Country.

Two local bike riders get honored at Fenway Park

Emotional night for Sherry Iuliano

By MIKE GIANNATTASIO
Sports Correspondent

On the weekend of August 2nd-3rd, Sherry Iuliano of Wilmington will take part in the 29th annual Pan Mass Challenge, a bike-a-thon that crosses the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Since 1980, the Pan-Massachusetts Challenge has raised over $204 million for life-saving cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber

"This year my good friends had a yard sale which raised quite a bit and they donated 100% of the money to the PMC. The rest comes from friends and family."

Iuliano, who trains by riding around the Wilmington area and on her stationary bike, will be riding with a team called "The Flying Henry's" for the first time ever this year. She said she rides in the PMC for several different causes.

Leonard survives cancer, gears up for big challenge

By MIKE GIANNATTASIO
Sports Correspondent

The Pan-Massachusetts Challenge is a pioneer of the athletic fundraising industry and today raises more money for charity than any other single event in the country. It is a model of fundraising efficiency as 230,000 members contributed to raising $33 million last year.

Chris Leonard, 35, of Wilmington is one of these members as he and his family have raised over $55,000 over the last six years.

Leonard, a testicular cancer survivor, will be riding in the PMC for his fifth year.

"I have been riding the last five years but I was unable to ride when I was finishing my treatment a while back," said Leonard, a Topsfield, MA native.

Leonard's family members have also taken part in the PMC, as his wife Becca will be riding next to him again this year.

"My mother and my father in-law rode for three years and my wife will be riding in her fifth PMC after she took last year off because she was pregnant with our first son," said

Leonard.

"Being involved in the PMC was something that my entire family wanted to do."

While Leonard's family has raised over $55,000, Leonard has raised $16,000 individually.

"I have a large family and they have been a big help (in raising money) along with great friends," said Leonard, a Salem State and Becker College graduate. "I am also in sales and have been able to ask clients (to donate) as well."

"My family and I have also found ways of fundraising by asking people if they would like to have someone's name placed on our back as we ride during the PMC. We find that people like to know that they can make the donation in someone's name."

"We will ride in memory of someone who has died from cancer or someone who is fighting to beat cancer."

This past Saturday night, Leonard took part in the Pan Mass Challenge ride around Fenway Park prior to the Red Sox-Orioles game. Leonard, who participated in it for the first time, said it was a very emotional experience.

"The emotion around us was very powerful," said Leonard. "Before going out on the field, I was talking with the other (cancer) survivors and they were talking about how amazing it was going to be. When I looked into the crowd (when we were out on the field), I could see how people were looking at us seeing the face of someone they lost."

For now, Leonard said he is just looking forward to the PMC ride and training for the difficult routes of the course. Besides his wife Becca, he will be riding with his good friends Sue Denis, Dan Murphy, and Doug Flavin.

"The hills going into the lunch stop is always the hardest," said Leonard. "The easiest is coming out of the sand dunes in the last mile because you are still riding but it is flat and you know you have (almost finished)."

Leonard also added that he hopes he will be able to take part in the ride for many more years to come.

"I hope to continue to participate (in the PMC) for as long as I am able to," said Leonard. "This is my fifth PMC and I am five years cancer free. I hope to be able to count the years and the PMC together for many years to come."

"It is great to be part of something so large but so personal. I love the PMC attitude everyone has as it is all about someone else. Everyone is doing this for their own reason and none of them are selfish."

"We can only hope that more and more people can beat cancer and that treatment will become easier and less painful. This is why the money that we can raise for research is so important."

The PMC is the largest single fundraising event for the Jimmy Fund. One hundred percent of every dollar raised by the PMC goes to the Jimmy Fund/Dana Farber.

If anyone would like to donate to Chris Leonard on his fifth year of riding in the PMC, go to the link, <http://www.pmc.org/egifts/default.asp>, and select sponsor a rider and enter the E-Gift code: CL0085. All donations would be greatly appreciated.

Another cancer survivor, Engdahl, is honored

Recently, the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society paid special tribute to Wilmington resident John Engdahl, a man who has given time, talent and effort. His 15-year history with L.L.S. has benefited thousand of lives and helped so many people do what they never thought possible.

John Engdahl was going to run the Boston Marathon in 1993 to mark his 50th birthday. He trained all year, but when he went in for a physical a couple of weeks before, they diagnosed him with AML Leukemia. After his bone marrow transplant and taking a year off, he decided to run for T.N.T. (Team in Training) for the Leukemia Society. That first year they only had a five member team. John has run seven Boston Marathons since then raising over $100,000. LLS provided over 64 million this year to 400 researches of Blood Cancers in the United States and abroad.

John now volunteers at water stops with his wife Helen and always makes himself available to speak at T.N.T. recruitment events. John's volunteer efforts go far beyond T.N.T. He has been an Ambassador for L.L.S. speaking at events and participating in patient education programs.

If you'd like to join T.N.T. call John at 978-658-9237 or e-mail johnengdahl@verizon.net

Bozzella named to UML Honor Roll

UMass Lowell, fresh off another splendid year in athletics, placed 39 student-athletes on the Northeast-10 Conference 2007-08 Commissioner's Honor Roll, released last Wednesday.

The Commissioner's Honor Roll includes a gold, silver and bronze scholar athlete list. Gold Scholars included those student-athletes who finished among the top five percent for grade point average at UML. Silver Scholars included those who finished between the top six and 10 percent while those who finished between 11-15 percent were named Bronze Scholars.

Locals making the UML Commissioner's Honor Roll include freshmen Brianne Bozzella of Wilmington (women's soccer).

You Can Never Hang Up Your Gloves: Wilmington resident John Engdahl, better known as the Marathon Man, recently received the Dr. Anthony Cortese Award which is given to a special kind of person - one who knows the fight against Leukemia. (courtesy photo)

Cancer Institute through its Jimmy Fund.

The ride has two starting lines on Saturday, August 2nd, as one starts in Sturbridge and one begins in Wellesley.

There are four total finish lines as one-day riders finish in Bourne on Saturday, August 2nd or in Wellesley on Sunday, August 3rd.

Two day riders finish on Sunday, August 3rd, in either Wellesley or Provincetown.

Iuliano, 40, a Hodgkin's disease survivor, will be riding in the PMC for the fourth consecutive year. She got involved in the PMC shortly after battling cancer six years ago.

"In 2002 I was diagnosed with Hodgkin's Lymphoma and treated at Dana Farber Cancer Institute with six months of chemotherapy," said Iuliano, a 1985 Wilmington High School graduate. "During this time, there were posters throughout the hospital for the Pan-Mass Challenge."

"I didn't know if I was going to make it through cancer, but thought that if I did, I'd ride in the PMC as soon as I was strong again."

Iuliano has made an enormous difference in the event as she has raised an incredible $18,000 since becoming involved.

"Raising the money takes a lot of effort, but is well worth it in the end," said Iuliano, who also is a 1990 Salem State graduate and became a family nurse practitioner in 2006 after studying at Regis College. "I start fundraising in January by raffling two Red Sox tickets at the hospital I work at."

"I ride for friends and family who have lost their lives to cancer, and I also ride for all the survivors like myself," said Iuliano.

This past Saturday night, Iuliano took part in the pre-game PMC ride around Fenway Park. She rode her bicycle around the perimeter of Fenway for the third consecutive year with 40 other cancer survivors. All the 40 cancer survivors will be participating in the PMC next weekend as well.

"Knowing that last year there were 26 cancer survivors riding around the park and this year there were 40 riders (was a significant difference)," said Iuliano.

Iuliano also added that the PMC is a really emotional event for everyone that takes part.

"The event holds a lot of passion for both the riders and volunteers," said Iuliano. "We all know someone who has had cancer."

"Words cannot describe the emotions experienced during the PMC. Just when you think you can't ride another mile, you see a small child holding a sign that says, 'thank you for riding, and I am here because of your ride.'"

For the future, Iuliano hopes that the PMC will continue to reach their hope and aspiration by providing Dana-Farber's doctors and researchers the necessary resources to discover cures for all cancers.

"We need to raise money for cancer research so there will be more survivors in this world," she said.

Triple A All-Stars shut out Double A team, 4-0

By MIKE GIANNATTASIO
Sports Correspondent

On Sunday, the 'AAA' Wilmington Little League All-Star team beat out the 'AA' Wilmington little league all-star team 4-0 in a one game series at Rotary Field in Wilmington.

Triple A Manager Jerry Lawrenson has been involved in Wilmington Little League baseball for four years, and he coached the Triple A Devil Rays to the championship game this past season.

Before Sunday's game, Lawrenson told all of the players on his team to enjoy themselves and play to the best of their abilities.

"I told the players just to go out there and have fun," said Lawrenson. "It was their day. I wanted them to go out there and showcase their talent, and I wanted them to show everybody what they can do because they are true all-stars."

Matt Dailey and Joe D'Agostino were two of the players selected from the Devil Rays to the all-star team, and Lawrenson said he had his Devil Rays players vote for them and they were the obvious choices based on their leadership and talent on the field.

"I didn't vote for the all-stars as I let my Devil Rays players vote," said Lawrenson. "(Dailey and D'Agostino) were selected by the players for their leadership on the bench as well as their pitching skills and outstanding plays on the field."

Dailey was the starting pitcher in Sunday's game and regular season Pirates player Shane Sullivan pitched the last inning as he got the save for the all-stars.

D'Agostino recorded two hits and two RBIs in the game, and he said he had a great time playing in the game.

"The game was really fun," said D'Agostino, who played pitcher and catcher for the Devil Rays during the regular season. "I am really glad I got the opportunity to play in the game."

Triple A Royals player Bobby Bryant played in the all-star game as well, and agreed with D'Agostino as he also enjoyed himself throughout the entire six innings.

"The game was all for fun, and I had a really good time," said Bryant, who was a center-fielder and third baseman for the Royals. "I also really liked that our team won the game."

Lawrenson had a terrific time too, and he said he would love to continue coaching in this annual all-star game for years to come.

"I had a ball coaching the players in the game," said Lawrenson. "They were a great bunch of kids. I'd coach them all the time if I could."

The entire roster for the 'AAA' all-stars includes: Nolan Arbuckle, Mike Beray, Bobby Bryant, Mike Colton, Joe D'Agostino, Matt Dailey, and Steve DeFuria. Also contributing to Sunday's win were players Anthony Deniso, Sal DiSanto, Zach Lord, Brian Neal, Dan Paige, Evan Raffi, and Shane Sullivan.

The Double A All-Stars fell short of winning the game, but 'AA' regular season Angel's and 'AA' all-star manager Dave Flood and his players had a tremendous time.

"It was just really an honor for the kids to be selected for the all-star team," said Flood, who has been involved with Wilmington Little League baseball for over 15 years. "You could tell that the kids were proud to be there, and I was just proud to have the opportunity to coach them. It's a fun game for everybody involved."

Many people came out to watch Sunday's game, especially younger kids who were cheering for their friends anytime they made a spectacular play or got a base hit.

Michael Murphy, 11, played on 'AAA' Devil Rays this past season, and he loved watching all his friends play in Sunday's all-star game.

"It was really fun watching the all-star game," said Murphy. "I really liked watching it with my friends because we all had a good time."

Jimmy Lawrenson, 11, watched the game with his younger brother, Tommy, 9, and Lawrenson said he liked watching the game because he got to root for his dad who was coaching the 'AAA' team in the game.

"I liked seeing my dad coach the game," said Lawrenson. "That was what Tommy and I enjoyed the most."

Patrick O'Connell, 12, thought the best part of the game was the excellent pitching by the 'AAA' all-star team.

"I really liked watching the pitchers as they all did really well," said O'Connell. "They all did a great job of not allowing the 'AA' team to score any runs."

The 'AA' pitchers did a magnificent job too, as they held the older kids to only four runs.

The starting pitcher for the 'AA' team was Bill Falter, and pitching after him throughout the game were players Nick Polli, Lucas Garrity, Andrew Verducci, and Justin Leger.

Flood said his players did an excellent job of listening to his pre-game speech before they took the field.

"(Prior to the game,) I told the players to have a good time and to have fun," said Flood. "I told them just do their best and they all did which is great."

The entire roster for the 'AA' all-star team includes: Tim Benoit, Bill Falter, Patrick Finn, Ryan Fisher, Lucas Garrity, Lawrence Gordon, and Joey Hydorn. Also being selected to the team were players Joseph Kelly, Justin Leger, Charlie Minghella, Ian Palmer, Josh Pasquariello, Nick Polli, and Andrew Verducci.

16 Yr. Old HR Derby ball home run derby held at Rotary Field.

WLLB President Frank Della Pelle said the Wilmington 16 year old home-run derby has been taking place annually for almost a decade.

"The home-run derby started in 1999," said Della Pelle. "This is the 16 year olds last year in little league baseball so it's a nice last get-together."

The home-run derby consists of two rounds plus tie-breaker rounds, as all six participants get ten outs in the first round. After the first round, the top three batters with the most home-runs move on to the second round and get five outs per at-bat. Any players tied after the second round move on to extra tie-breaker rounds with each player getting three outs per at-bat.

Participating in the home-run derby were senior league baseball players Nick Boutoures, Evan Butters, Cole Carter, Brendon Fullerton, Dom McCann, and Mike Murphy. Boutoures of the Cardinals led off the home-run derby with nine home runs in the first round.

McCann of the Angels batted next and hit four balls over the fence.

Batting after McCann was Fullerton of the Brewers and he smacked three balls out of the park.

Murphy, who played on the West Division championship Brewers team, hit 12 home runs in the first round.

Butters of the Devil Rays batted after him and he hit a total of three home-runs.

The last hitter up to bat in the first round was Carter of the Giants, and he struck a total of eight home runs past the outfield fence.

Murphy, Boutoures, and Carter all moved on to the second round as they finished with 12, nine, and eight home runs respectively.

The first round total does not get added to the second round total, so Boutoures led off the second round with a new start and hit one home-run over the fence.

Murphy swung the bat next and the left handed batter hit six balls out of the park.

Carter was at the plate after Murphy and he hit one home-run, making Murphy the 16 year old home run champion.

Boutoures and Carter went to a tie-breaker round for second place, and after neither of them hit any balls out of the field in the third round, Carter smacked his tenth total home run in the fourth round to finish in second.

At the conclusion of the derby, Murphy, the winner with 18 total home runs, took the traditional home-run trot around the bases carrying his award.

All the participants said they had a good time in the home-run derby, as they all agreed it is a great event for everyone involved.

"I liked being here and being with my friends," said Boutoures, the third place finisher with ten home runs total.

"It was lots of fun."
"It was a good time and it was just really fun being out here," said Carter, the second place winner who also belted ten total home-runs.

The first place champion, Mike Murphy, agreed with Boutoures and Carter as he also had an unbelievable time being with his peers.

"It was a very fun event," said Murphy. "It was great that I got to hang out with my friends."

Murphy also added that he wanted to win the competition so he could bring back the home run derby title to his family.

"My brother (Sean) won this competition before, so my family told me I wouldn't be allowed back in their house if I didn't win it," said Murphy jokingly.

Jr. League Dodgers

A few weeks ago, the junior league regular season Dodgers beat out the Cardinals in a pitcher's duel 3-1. Cole Pepper was the starting pitcher for the Dodgers, as he tossed three innings of shut out ball. Dan Collins of the Dodgers came in the fourth inning and didn't allow one runner to reach base as three batters quickly came up and sat down for the Cardinals. Jake MacIsaac was on the mound to close out the game as he pitched the fifth, sixth, and seventh innings for the Dodgers and only allowed one run.

The turning point in the game came in the fifth inning when the Cardinals were mounting a come-back. They loaded the bases with one out, and they seemed to have the momentum on their side.

With the bases full, one of the Cardinal's batters hit the ball straight back to Dodgers pitcher Jake MacIsaac who threw the ball to home for the second out. Catcher Tyler Vibert then turned the double-play by throwing the batter out at first base to get the Dodgers out of the jam.

The manager of the league champion Dodgers team this year was Dan MacIsaac, and he said the Cardinals played a great game against his team, considering the Dodgers won most of their regular season games by a very wide margin.

"We didn't have a game with the score as close as this championship game all year," said MacIsaac, who coached the Dodgers to a 10-1-2 record during the regular season. "Most of the games we won during the season were typically won by ten runs or more, so lots of credit goes to the Cardinals who played a fantastic game against us."

Prior to the game, MacIsaac gave his players plenty of advice, including not to give the 10-2-1 regular season Cardinals any extra at-bats.

"Before the game, I told my players that we're playing the best team we've played all year," said MacIsaac. "I told them to stay focused, make the routine plays, and don't give the Cardinals any extra outs because it would haunt us later in the game."

"The great part was that our team didn't. They played a tight ball game, and they played well. This was a good-hard fought ballgame and a dog-fight won by our team."

What impresses MacIsaac the most is that not only was his team errorless in the championship game, but they actually made very few errors all season long.

"The kids really seemed to be prepared for the every single game," said MacIsaac. "We had very few mental lapses, and as a matter of fact I can only count on one hand the only errors we made all year."

Overall, MacIsaac said that his players had an extraordinary season as everyone on the team had fun and contributed to making the Dodgers league champions.

"The kids seemed to come and enjoy themselves throughout the entire year," said MacIsaac. "They played fantastic, and they were willing to do what it takes to help the team win."

"There was no selfish play. There were smiles on the bench the entire year. It was just a great group of kids and there was just a lot of camaraderie."

The entire roster for the junior league champion Dodgers team includes: Mike Brown, Matthew Chiricosta, Marcus Cole, Dan

Collins, John Grealish, Steve Haillas, Brendan Healy, Jake MacIsaac, Mike Marinella, Cole Pepper, Tim Penny, Dan Sullivan, and Tyler Vibert. The Dodgers were led by manager Dan MacIsaac and assistant coaches Vinny Chiricosta and Eric Polli.

Softball Reds

Last season's first place and championship winning Wilmington Reds softball team had eight returning players and five new players on the roster this year. Rookies, Jennifer Holloran, Erin Berube, Sarah Flodin, Kristen Pasquariello and Vickie Lee were great draft choices for the Reds.

The rain in early April delayed the girls in getting on the field for a few weeks. But once the fields were ready, the girls brought the same energy and enthusiasm from last season and were ready to defend their title.

The Reds found their rhythm early by winning their first four games. The girls hit a little bump losing game five and tying game six but quickly regained their momentum by winning the next eight straight games.

Top hitters Alex Darien, Megan Howland and Michelle Woods contributed mightily with their bats. First time catcher Fallon Soye was strong behind the plate on the receiving end of Sara Pudvelis' consistent pitching. Returning players Erin Duffy, Shannon Wilcox and Lizzy Hill also contributed to the victories.

After finishing first in the regular season with a 12-1-1 record, the season ended with a tough loss to the Pirates, 16-12 in the second round of the playoffs. Manager Jim Howland would like to thank all the players for a great season.

Special thanks to assistant coaches Tom Woods, Amy and Eddie Holloran and Sean Berube for volunteering their time and their many contributions this winning season. The girls would like to send a big thank you to their parents.

Ryser has big performances at Bay State Games

Many locals from Tewksbury and Wilmington competed in the annual Bay State Summer Games held this past week in various locations throughout Boston.

In boys basketball grade 11-12 competition, Tewksbury resident Corey Ryser, who just graduated from Malden Catholic High School, had a game high 30 points for team Metro in the team's opening round 79-76 defeat to team North held at the Wentworth Institute of Technology Gymnasium.

On Friday, Ryser scored 39 points in helping Team Metro defeat Coastal, 98-87. And later than afternoon, he was back at it scoring 25 points in the team's 101-85 win over Southeast.

Turning to softball, Tewksbury's Lauren DiCredico was a key member of the Northeast team. Last Thursday she pitched very well in the team's 3-3 tie with Team West.

In wrestling action, Tewksbury's Ryan Wackrow finished in second place in the 59-65 weight division of the grades five and six level. In the scholastic division, Joel Altavesta finished third in the 189 pound class, and Michael Altavesta was fifth in the 171 pound division.

Also competing in wrestling from Tewksbury included Tim Davidian, James Ramsdell and Hugh Fitzpatrick.

In soccer, a big highlight came from Tewksbury resident

Megan Billings. Last year at this time she tore her ACL in her knee, participating in the Bay State Games and was forced to sit out her entire junior season at TMHS. Just last week, she was back in between the posts, and registered a combined shut out in the team's 1-0 win over Metro, and then Sunday she again combined for a shut out as Northeast beat Coastal, 3-0, in the Bronze Medal game. Wilmington's Kaitlin Souza was also a member of the Northeast team.

Tewksbury residents who competed in track-and-field include Sarah Bonomo, Bill and Joanne Harriman, Nik Kafkas, Robert Lieweg and Kristen Wilson, while Wilmington residents included Natalie, Jacob and Sydnee Russo, with Shawn Fahey and James DiNuccio.

Tewksbury's Chrissy Lowe was a member of the Northeast 6vs6 field hockey squad, and Wilmington's Kenny Vassallo competed on the tennis court.

Wilmington's Conor and Brendan Murphy both were lacrosse players last week and both will be on the ice this upcoming week as hockey players.

— JAMIE POTE —

Tewksbury Under 10 team takes second place

The Tewksbury Redmen 10U travel softball team took home a second-place finish in a grueling seven games, losing to the Taunton Dynamites in the Championship game of the Swansea 2008 Pony Qualifier.

Despite the extreme heat, the team played tough behind the superb pitching of Amanda Brown, Ally Kelly and Danielle McFadries. Alyssa DiFruscia and Stephanie McFadries were tough behind plate, earning the respect of all base runners and picking one off from third base.

Ally Kelly was the offensive powerhouse for Tewksbury batting .437 with 8 runs scored and 4 RBI's. Other offensive stand-outs included Amanda Brown, Stephanie McFadries, Danielle McFadries, Nicole Petherbridge, Allysa DiFruscia, Erin Walsh and Lisa Petrowski.

Tewksbury's defense was ruthless and combined with the explosive offense, outscored opponents 69 to 15. Outfielders Carlye Slavin and Kirsten Dick had stellar performances, allowing nothing to get by them while Lauren Strainge was solid at second.

Amanda Brown was selected for the honor of Tournament MVP for Tewksbury by the tournament directors and umpire staff.

The team displayed their "Tewksbury Toughness" earning their second-place spot amongst tough opponents and an extremely difficult schedule. They look forward to meeting some of the same teams again in the upcoming Lowell tournament, and will be shooting for a first-place finish.

Under 12 team finishes with a fourth place trophy

The Tewksbury 12U Girls Travel Softball team, place second in Tewksbury Tournament held this past week.

Fresh off a fourth place finish at the states in Springfield, Tewksbury's 12U Travel Softball team was looking to defend their home turf at this weekend tournament in Tewksbury. The team battled their way through the seating rounds on Friday and Saturday and were facing a tough road to the finals on Sunday.

Sunday began with the Maine Noble, who were the fourth seed over all. Meghan Sears set the tone early in the game by pounding the strike zone with fastballs and a nasty change-up. Danielle Cacciola made a huge catch in left field on the Noble's big bat to end the first inning.

The offense was led by Kelli Sugrue, Emily Hamilton and Bridget Casey who combined to knock in seven of the 11 runs. In the end, the Tewksbury girls were just too much for Maine and they advanced to the next round (11-0).

In the next round, Tewksbury would face the top seed Halifax Hurricane and Meghan Sears would take the mound to lead the team against another tough opponent. Right out of the gate, the Tewksbury bats went to work. Jamie Ray and Jessica Vitale set the table for Shannon McLaughlin and she delivered with a two-run single. Once, again Emily Hamilton swung a hot bat, knocking in five runs. Joining her in the hit parade was Emily Knoops who knocked in three runs of her own.

The defense was led by Jamie Ray who was force to catch every game when Devlin Frost was injured Friday night. Jamie Ray had a fantastic weekend behind the plate, combining with Emily Knoops and Jessica Vitale to complete double play in the first game. Then she followed it up with another nice performance keeping the Hurricane in check by throwing a runner out at second and tagging out another at the plate. Once again the Tewksbury Girls showed their determination and advanced to the final round (12-3).

The finals would be a tough game against a strong North Reading Hornets team. Meghan Sears once again asked for the ball and battled hard all game. In the end, Meghan would pitch a total of 14 innings, letting up 11 runs and striking out 18. The defense was led by Hannah Gillis who played another solid game in center field as she has done all year. Hannah made two big catches at key points in the game to end two potentially big innings for the Hornets. Jessica Vitale, also had a nice game at shortstop, throwing out six Hornets.

In the end, Tewksbury would come up a little short to a very good Hornet's team but they are in great shape to charge into the Regional's this weekend.

The Tewksbury 12U Girls would also like to wish Joe Gillis father of Hannah a speedy recovery from a Heart Procedure. Get Well Soon Joe.

The Tewksbury Youth Football Board of Directors has reached a point where we have a great need for volunteers to help in the Snack Shack and other areas of the program. We have reached a critical stage in the organization. If parents don't step up and help the program, we will be forced to either close the snack shack at times or hire personnel to help run the operation. And just has we have seen in our Town Budget situation, it takes money to run a town and it takes volunteers and money to run a youth sports program. We are in need of parental volunteers for the Snack Shack operation for practices and games.

Also, there are numerous Board positions that we are looking for people to step into next year and now is a good time to step in, see how the operation is run and determine the position that you are interested in helping the program and our children.

Volunteerism is the mainstay of the Tewksbury Youth Football Program. Please step up and help us help your children.

Please contact any Board member or League President, Frank Ferrelli at 978-851-4494 or via email at: fferrelli@yahoo.com

Finally, Tewksbury Youth Football wishes to remind parents that the ever football player and cheerleader will be assigned to a team.

Tewksbury girls take home 3vs3 championship title

Five local girls from Tewksbury won the regional Play Soccer 3vs3 Soccer U8 Girls Division (under 8) Soccer Tournament on Saturday, July 12th at the Ellsworth McAfee Field in Northboro, MA.

Kelly Golini, Lindsay Harris, Lillian Holden, Maggie Penta, and Isabelle Picher, all 8 yr. old girls of Tewksbury, formed a team under the direction of Coaches Jamie Holden and Dave Picher.

The girls all played in the Tewksbury Youth Soccer League this past year and decided to try out this tournament that did not follow traditional soccer rule play.

The girls played three players on a smaller sized field (40x30 Feet) with no goalie. The goals were 4x6 feet wide and there was to be no ball contact within the five foot radius semi-circular area located directly in front of the goal. Players could not touch the ball while in this semi-circular area to defend their goal.

These girls displayed excellent form while competing in this non-traditional soccer play and went undefeated outscoring their competitors in goals by 38 and only allowing eight goals against them.

This is the first time these five girls played together as a team and in this tournament with only a few practices prior to get accustomed to the smaller playing field and rules.

Because of their exciting divisional win, the girls have been invited to compete and represent themselves and Tewksbury at the National Challenge Sports 3vs3 U8 Girls Division Tournament to be held in Disney World later this month. This National Tournament is regarded as the most prestigious soccer event of the summer and features teams from across the USA.

At press time, it is uncertain if the team will be able to make the trip to Florida to compete later this month on July 31st to August 3rd.

If anyone is interested in sponsoring the team to travel to the tournament, please contact Jamie Holden as soon as possible to meet registration deadlines.

Congratulations to Kelly, Lindsay, Lillian, Maggie and Isabelle, for winning and going undefeated! You should all be very proud of your great accomplishment!

Algae alert: Could you and your animals be at risk?

By MIA CARTER

Algae - Pool owners think of it as a nuisance and lake lovers think of it as a harmless part of the ecosystem, but it can be downright deadly in some cases, so water lovers and pet owners alike are urged to use caution.

It's a hot, sunny day and the cool water of that local lake or pond may be really tempting for a dip, but authorities from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH), in conjunction with the Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) warn that your local lake may pose deadly hazards.

Potentially lethal "blue-green" algae blooms have been detected in the Boston area. Among the affected bodies of water is Wakefield's Lake Quannapowitt and the algae has even been found in sections of the Charles River, so visitors and pet owners are urged to use caution when visiting local lakes, ponds and rivers. Presently, there is no swimming allowed at Lake Quannapowitt, but not because of algae. It has been closed to swimming due to staffing cuts.

These algae blooms are most common in the late summer and early fall, but conditions this year have allowed for the growth of Microcystis Algae Blooms (also known as blue-green algae) much earlier in the season. Local lakes, ponds and rivers have been monitored by state officials since January and in recent weeks, these potentially toxic algae blooms have been found locally. There's the potential for these conditions to also be present in many smaller bodies of water that have not been tested, so people are urged to use caution when visiting rivers and other fresh water bodies.

According to the DPH, microcystis is a type of cyanobacteria algae that grows naturally on the water's surface. When the weather warms, there's a natural increase in the number of organisms and nutrients present in the water. In certain situations, this triggers a sudden burst of growth, known as an algae bloom. Often, this is associated with dense layers of algae POTENTIALLY TOXIC "BLUE-GREEN" ALGAE BLOOMS have been detected in the Boston area. Among the affected bodies of water is Wakefield's Lake Quannapowitt and the algae has even been found in sections of the Charles River. "It is recommended that people and their dogs should stay away from the algae and to rinse off after coming in contact with it," Wakefield health officials advised.

that can be seen on the water's surface. In many cases, there is an odor associated with these algae blooms.

Unfortunately, blue-green algae produces a toxin that can be deadly to humans and animals alike. Toxicity can result from contact with the skin and ingestion of water from a lake, pond or stream where this algae is present. Measures must be taken to avoid these potential health risks.

"It is recommended that people and their dogs should stay away from the algae and to rinse off after coming in contact with it," Wakefield Health officials advised.

A check with area veterinary clinics revealed that only a handful of suspected algae toxicity cases have been reported in the area.

Vets recommend that pet owners use caution when allowing their pets to enter the water, and always rinse the pet immediately after a swim. Pets should also not be allowed to drink from ponds, lakes, rivers, etc. due to not only the risk of algae toxicity, but also due to the potential for ingesting a water-borne micro-organism like giardia, which can cause serious and chronic problems with the digestive tract.

The effects of lethal algae can vary depending on the degree of contact, the concentration of the algae toxin, microcystin, and the size of the human or pet involved.

A case of minor exposure can lead to irritation involving the eyes, ear and skin, which can break out in sores. In more serious cases, the toxin affects the nervous and circulatory systems, in addition to the digestive system, so symptoms can range from twitching, muscle cramps, vomiting and diarrhea, and even life-threatening seizures and death. In severe cases, death results from the severe liver damage that can occur in cases of algae exposure.

Physical symptoms can arise as soon as fifteen minutes after contact with the toxic algae. This is the case for humans and pets, alike.

Local bodies of water will remain at risk of developing potentially toxic algae blooms throughout the summer, since the warm, sunny weather promotes the algae growth. Rainfall does tend to improve the situation, as the raindrops will break-up the algae layer and circulate the water.

Health officials say that anyone who comes in contact with the algae and experiences negative effects should immediately contact their healthcare provider concerning the situation. The same goes for pets who should immediately be transported to a veterinary facility for treatment.

To learn more about toxic algae blooms in your area, contact your local health department, or contact the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Bureau of Environmental Health at 617-624-5757 or visit www.mass.gov and enter the search term "algae."

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"Hellboy: The Golden Army"

"HELLBOY II: THE GOLDEN ARMY" is entertaining, even if it might be a bit too long. It is populated by a vast number of mythical monstrosities. This movie reminds us that even a demon can suffer from a broken heart.

"HELLBOY II: THE GOLDEN ARMY"

GRADE: ***

He might not be as well-known as other superheroes like Superman and Spider-Man, but "Hellboy" has a dedicated group of fans who've embraced the demon-turned-savior and made him into a box-office money machine.

Though the first installment of the series only broke even in the United States, it did remarkably well on home video and overseas, so much so that director Guillermo Del Toro convinced the powers that be at Universal to give the hero another shot at the big screen.

Del Toro's imagination can be seen throughout "Hellboy 2: The Golden Army" as it is populated by a vast number of mythical monstrosities that look like creatures from the cutting room floor of his last film, "Pan's Labyrinth".

This time, Hellboy (Ron Perlman), pyrotechnic Liz Sherman (Selma Blair), and empath Abe Sapien (Doug Jones) are assigned to stop Prince Nuada (Luke Goss), a royal son who sets out to reclaim territory above ground for the magical creatures he rules beneath the earth.

He has broken a centuries-old true and intends to awaken the golden army, an unstoppable mystical, mechanical force that can only be stirred when all three pieces of a golden crown are put together.

The expected comic book mayhem ensues with Hellboy spitting out one-liners and leaving destruction in his wake. However, what makes the film so entertaining is the interaction between the heroes, whose flaws come to life. Hellboy and Liz are having trouble adjusting to living together while Abe falls for Princess Nuala, Nuada's sister.

Without question, del Toro's a visionary and he lets his imagination run loose in the underworld where most of the film's second hour takes place. Trolls, talking tumors, malevolent tooth fairies and a host of other indescribable creatures crowd the screen and make the film a visual delight.

The film could have been a bit shorter, but just when the movie is ready to become mediocre we're treated to the odd sight of a drunk Hellboy or the strangest duet of Barry Manilow's "I Can't Smile Without You," you can imagine. These moments of whimsy make "The Golden Army" worthwhile and reminds us that even a demon can suffer from a broken heart.

"HANCOCK"

GRADE: **

A movie about a superhero who is surly, cynical, disdainful of his public, has anger management issues and is an alcoholic - and who would later be redeemed and transformed - would make for an interesting, if unusual feature.

"Hancock" starts out as that film but doesn't follow it through to the end.

Will Smith's summer blockbuster fails because the filmmakers - director Peter Berg and screenwriters Vy Vincent Ngo and Vince Gilligan - lacked confidence in their concept. To broaden its appeal, they crammed in other subplots to make the movie more audience-friendly.

Basically, they were catering to moviegoers who expect certain things in a Will Smith release - especially an abundance of action and special effects as well as some humor. Maybe they feared making Smith's Hancock too unlikely because it might offend his fans.

"Hancock" is not a bad movie, just not what it could have been, and flies off in too many directions.

The story starts out promising enough: Smith's Hancock is endowed with super powers, but he'd rather just lie around and drink Scotch.

When he does use his powers, he creates more mayhem and destruction. While capturing bad guys, he causes millions of dollars in damages - wrecking buildings, highways, police cars - anything that happens to get in his way.

After he saves an idealistic p.r. man, played by Jason Bateman, his world begins to change.

Bateman's Ray Embrey convinces Hancock to allow him to make over his image so that the public will embrace him.

Wonderful idea. Too bad it's not the storyline for the entire movie.

Without giving too much away, the plot goes off in another direction with the introduction of Ray's wife, Mary, played by Oscar-winner Charlize Theron.

"Hancock's" biggest problem is a lack of focus. It suffers from cinematic ADD, jumping from action-adventure to comedy to drama to superhero spoof as if trying to be all things for all audiences.

The movie runs about 92 minutes, leaving one wondering how many unanswered questions would have been resolved by what ended up on the cutting room floor.

"WALL E"

GRADE: ****

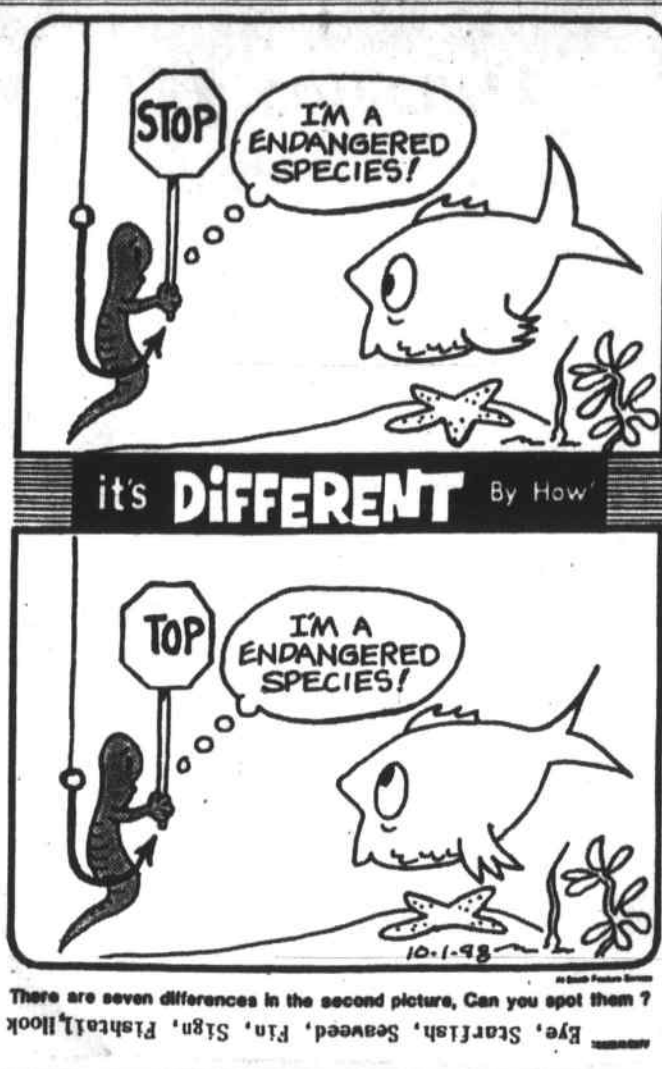

"WALL-E", the latest collaboration between Disney and Pixar (the folks who brought you Toy Story, Finding Nemo, and Cars, among others) is quite possibly the best film to be released thus far in 2008.

The film is set hundreds of years in the future, with Earth now burnt to a near crisp and overcome by mountains of trash piled as high as the tallest skyscrapers.

There, working diligently at ground level, is WALL-E, an adorable robot with sloping cameras for eyes and a clunky body whose job it is to neatly package all the waste we humans left behind before we fled the planet when it no longer could sustain us.

As for the human race, the outlook is grim. We're depicted as fat, lazy creatures with giant bellies and almost zero bone mass. We're like huge, bumbling infants, all grasping for foodstuffs and comfort while looking dazed and confused aboard the Axiom, a giant space ship that roams the heavens, presumably until Earth is once again inhabitable.

With only a cockroach for companionship, WALL-E's is lonely. In his downtime, he collects things. He likes his Rubik's Cube. He watches "Hello, Dolly!" on an old television set and responds to the romance playing out onscreen, which only deepens his isolation.

And so when he unexpectedly is visited by EVE, a sleek and hot-tempered robot sent to Earth to find signs of life in vegetation, what he sees in her is the love of his life. He would follow her anywhere, which proves something of a problem when he gifts to EVE a plant he found growing in an old shoe.

Since EVE is programmed to immediately return any sort of plant life to the Axiom for study, off she goes, with WALL-E tagging along for an adventure that consumes the rest of the movie. Though the twists and turns that ensue won't be revealed here, it is safe to say this: While aboard the Axiom, which is owned by an evil corporate giant reminiscent of Wal-Mart, echoes of Stanley Kubrick's "2001" abound, with the movie not only becoming about man against machine, but also machine against machine.

With beautiful, detailed animation behind a script with very little dialogue, you watch in admiration at how well the story is told. "WALL-E" is another triumph for the creative team of Disney and Pixar, and has enough fun to keep the kids happy, while the message about what as a species we are doing to our planet may give their parents nightmares.

"GET SMART"

GRADE: **

As an admitted fan of the original "Get Smart," a 1960s television series that satirized the espionage genre (which this reviewer saw in reruns during the late 1970s), I am probably not the best person in the world to write a review on the film adaptation of the same name.

The show starred Don Adams as the bungling yet somewhat competent secret agent Maxwell Smart, and producers or whoever decided to cast Steve Carell as the next Maxwell Smart couldn't have made a better choice. Carell, who is most famous for his fatuous Michael Scott character on TV's "The Office," is a box office draw when it comes to the younger generation and just his name alone should get a whole new audience excited to see the next Maxwell Smart adventure.

Plus, his biggest strength as an actor is playing someone who is completely inept and oblivious to everything around him, which is the character of Smart in a nutshell (Smart serves as a top analyst for the super-secret government agency known as CONTROL.)

Maxwell's biggest dream in life is to become a field

WELL DESERVED

'Highly pleased' Wilmington in North Reading

"In the case of Town Administrator Greg Balukonis, the Selectmen are of the unanimous opinion that one good term deserves another," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"And a raise. "Saying they are highly pleased with Balukonis' job performance since he came on the job in August of 2005, the Selectmen unanimously extended his employment agreement with the town for another three years and gave him a raise.

"Balukonis' previous contract expired on June 30.

"The new pact, which Selectmen agreed to unanimously, runs through June 30, 2011.

"In terms of language, the two contracts are nearly identical with the only significant changes in the area of compensation.

"Effective July 1, Balukonis' salary will be $125,000 a year, up from his current base salary of $114,046. In the second year of the contract, his salary will increase 2.5 percent to $128,125 and in the third year, it will rise another 2.5 percent to $131,328.

"The new contract eliminates a 2 percent yearly performance bonus that Balukonis was eligible to receive at the discretion of the board and which he qualified for every year he has been here.

"Selectmen Chairman Robert Mauceri said the salary adjustment brings Balukonis up to par with several of his department heads in town hall and is also commensurate with the salaries paid to other town administrators in the area.

"The new contract also increases Balukonis' automobile allowance from $300 to $400 a month for the length of the contract and adds a fifth week of vacation in the third and final year of his contract...."

'In awe' in South Carolina.

"Frank spoke about her writing career and about her newest book, 'Bulls Island,' which was released recently. There was also a question and answer session for attendees.

"I am in awe of what my sister-in-law has accomplished," Benton said. "She started writing after her mother died as a way to deal with her grief. Little did we know that she would end up being a New York Times best-selling author...."

'Excited and grateful' in Woburn

"Miguel Santiago, 17, has been selected as the 2008 PFC Joseph L. Drew Youth of the Year for the Boys & Girls Club of Woburn," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Sponsored locally by the Woburn Marine Corps League, sponsored nationally by the Reader's Digest Association and administered by Boys & Girls Clubs of America, the national program recognizes exemplary character, superior leadership skills, outstanding service to Boys & Girls Clubs and the community and academic achievement.

agent just like the suave Agent 23 (Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson), and although he is qualified for the job, Chief (Alan Arkin) wants him to stay in his current position because he is too valuable.

Because there is basically no one else that can pull off the job, Maxwell is promoted to agent and is paired with the voluptuous Agent 99 (Anne Hathaway), who recently underwent plastic surgery so she can stay undercover. Although Agent 99 resents While the 20-year age difference between the two makes it difficult to take their relationship seriously, it also doesn't help that they don't have that much romantic chemistry between them.

But that doesn't stop "Get Smart" from being funny and entertaining, and much of that credit goes to Carell. There are a few humorous moments provided by CONTROL workers played by David Koechner, Terry Crews, Masi Oka and Nate Torrence (Bill Murray also makes a surprise cameo), but Carell is the one who comes up with the most gut-busters. (One of the best scenes involves Maxwell dancing with an overweight woman to make Agent 99 jealous.)

However, don't expect to be howling throughout the entire movie. The humor in "Get Smart" is more likely to make you smile or snicker rather than laugh out loud.

As an action/comedy hybrid, "Get Smart" is fun to watch, but there's no doubt a lot more could have been done given the material.

New device allows ipod music, entertainment through your car's sound system

MUSIC TO MOTORISTS' EARS

More and more motorists are looking forward to their next road trip because of a no-installation device that sits on top of the dash and lets them play music from their iPod through the car's sound system and make hands-free phone conversations through the car's speakers.

The demand for both iPod and Bluetooth technology in the car is skyrocketing, and consumers want easy ways to use these devices in their vehicles. This has now become reality with the introduction of Alpine's new eX-10. Now consumers can easily add both iPod music playback and Bluetooth hands-free operation for cell phones into their vehicles through one simple product.

Popular Devices for In-Car Use

The combinations of iPod and Bluetooth capabilities in one plug-and-play unit makes the eX-10 a unique and convenient device. Users no longer have to buy two separate devices to use both their iPod and hands-free Bluetooth services in their vehicle. The eX10 works with any car's FM radio system and plugs into the car's cigarette lighter. It sits on top of the dashboard and does not require permanent installation.

iPod Playback

For those who can't get enough of their iPod, the eX-10 allows for iPod music to be played through the car's sound system. The iPod's playlists, as well as album art, artist, song and album information are shown on the eX-10's 2.4 inch color display unit. The included remote control is used to control the iPod and access its music library. For enhanced music playback, the users can choose one of the eX-10's 10 equalizer presets to match their music preference (such as Pop, Rock, Jazz/Blues, or Hip Hop/Rap) for a customized sound experience.

Bluetooth Hands-Free Phone Calls

The eX-10 can control a Bluetooth-enabled phone or device, allowing for a hands-free conversation to be played through the car's speakers. Phone features such as a phonebook list, missed-calls, received calls and dialed calls are accessible through the eX-10 and are displayed on the unit's screen.

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA QUESTION: Who is the only person to be a major league baseball manager, as well as an NFL head coach?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•READING NATIVE BOB

MACALUSO served his first season with the UC Irvine Baseball program this spring as an assistant coach. Macaluso comes to UCI from Cal State L.A., where he was a member of the coaching staff that helped the Golden Eagles win the 2007 Division II West Regional title and advance to the College World Series in Montgomery, Alabama. Macaluso served as the team's third-base coach and worked with the infielders. From 1998-2006, Macaluso was the head baseball coach at Muhlenberg College. Taking over a program that had never finished higher than ninth in the Centennial Conference, Macaluso led Muhlenberg to a fourth-place finish in his first season. In 2002, the Mules recorded a school-record 23 wins en route to an appearance in the conference championship series. The following season, the team posted a 21-14-1 record and advanced to the championship series for the second consecutive year. Under Macaluso's tenure, Muhlenberg had its first conference Player of the Year, its first all-regional honoree and saw the school's first no-hitter.

Macaluso has coached in the Cape Cod Baseball League, managing the Brewster Whitecaps for the last five years and was named Manager of the Year in 2003. He served as an assistant coach for the club from 2000-2002, helping the team win the league title in 2000.

He began his coaching career as an assistant at Melrose High School in Melrose, Massachusetts and became the head varsity coach at Weston High School (Massachusetts) in 1993. He also had a two-year stint from 1996-98 as an assistant coach at Springfield College.

Macaluso earned a B.S. in physical education from Springfield College in 1987 and his master's degree in physical education in 1998.

Mucica and Fiorentino are among 11 newcomers on the 2009 roster, Sauter's largest class in his 14 years.

Mucica, the niece of UML golf coach/dean of MBA studies Gary Mucica, comes to UML following two years as a pitcher at Assumption. Fiorentino, also a pitcher, recently completed a stellar career at Tewksbury H.S., and is one of nine freshmen-to-be on UML's roster.

UML is fresh off a 24-25 season (17-11 in the Northeast-10 Conference) in which it advanced to the NE-10 Tournament after finishing in a tie for third place during the regular season.

Mucica comes to UML following two years at Assumption which preceded a stellar career at Tewksbury H.S. where she was the 2005 Merrimack Valley Conference Division I Player of the Year and two-time MVC all-star.

During her two seasons at Assumption, Mucica went 2-0 in 15 appearances as a freshman while the Greyhounds posted a 30-20 record. As a sophomore, Mucica went 5-11 in 23 appearances with a 3.18 ERA as Assumption struggled to a 10-34 clip.

A standout pitcher, Fiorentino helped lead Tewksbury H.S. to its fourth MVC Division I title in the spring as she posted a 17-3 record, 10 shutouts (one no-hitter) and a 0.43 ERA. She also brings significant offense, having batted .555 as a senior.

Ruszkowski was a three-year player at Reading Memorial H.S. where she helped the Rockets to the Middlesex League North Division Championship and earned League all-star honors as a senior.

PMC riders are between 15 and 85 years of age, come in all sizes, and are of different athletic abilities. Many riders are seasoned cyclists or triathletes, while others are PMC weekend warriors, having trained for this event alone. PMC cyclists are unified in the most important ways - they are driven to raise money for cancer research and they love the PMC.

The Pan-Massachusetts Challenge is a fully supported bike-a-thon - with food and water stops, mechanical and medical assistance, luggage transportation, and lodging - that runs through 46 cities and towns across Massachusetts. Two-day rides include the original 192-mile Sturbridge to Provincetown route; 180-mile Sturbridge-Bourne-Wellesley route; 163-mile Wellesley-Bourne-Provincetown route; or the 153-mile Wellesley-Bourne-Wellesley route. One-day riders cycle the 110-mile Sturbridge-Bourne route, the 84-mile Wellesley-Bourne route, or the 47-mile Wellesley-Wellesley Sunday loop. Cyclists are required to raise between $1,300 and $4,000 to ride in the PMC, depending on the chosen route, yet the average PMC cyclist raises more than $6,000. This commitment to the fundraising portion of the PMC journey is a testament to riders' dedication to the cause and their belief in the PMC mission.

Tackling ticks: How pet owners can level the playing field

During tick season, a dog or cat faces overwhelming odds when it steps outside.

More than 850 species of tick have been identified around the world, and a single female tick can lay as many as 8,000 eggs in her lifetime. Add in the fact that your pet's coat is a magnet for ticks, and these parasites become almost unavoidable during warm weather. Skin irritation only scratches the surface of the problems they can cause. By spreading Lyme disease and other vector-borne illnesses, ticks can also make your pet sick and expose your family to the same problems.

That's why now is the time to tackle ticks.

"TriForce Canine and TriForce Feline provide immediate relief from ticks," says Brian Reardon, product manager for TriForce. "It kills and repels ticks in only three hours, and it controls 90 percent to 100 percent of ticks in just one day. Plus, one convenient application keeps on protecting your pets for at least 30 days."

TriForce Squeeze-On delivers veterinary-strength tick control in a convenient over-the-counter formulation. Simply apply it in a stripe from the back of your pet's neck to midway between its neck and tail. Each monthly treatment also provides excellent protection against fleas and mosquitoes. For best results, be sure to reduce tick habitats around your home and lawn and spray infested areas with a recommended insecticide.

"Ticks are nearly unavoidable in much of the nation at this time of year," adds Reardon. "Help your cat or dog level the playing field with the tick-tacklin' protection of TriForce."

TriForce is available at farm, home and pet supply centers in four dosages for dogs and cats of all sizes. For more information, call (877) 734-7565 or visit www.triforceforpets.com and print a cash-back coupon for your next purchase.

During warm weather, ticks can be a real problem for dogs and cats, as well as the families that care for them.

Sensible snacks with a taste of luxury

We all know the type-the woman who seems to have it all together, all the time. She spends her days running from one place to the next, all the while smiling and looking as fabulous as ever. But in the back of her mind is always that wayward commitment to meet her weight-management goals.

"Women are always committing to their weight-management goals, and seek sensible, great-tasting snacks to help them stay committed," said Dr. Jennifer Garrett, director of nutrition marketing for Kellogg Company. "Special K Bliss bars are a snack women can feel free to truly enjoy as they pursue their weight-management goals."

The product comes in two exciting flavor combinations: Chocolate Dipped Raspberry and Chocolate Dipped Orange. With the combination of sweet fruit-flavored pieces, crispy cereal and a chocolatey bottom layer, they offer women flavor combinations of chocolate and fruit that, at 90 calories, help them get on track toward weight-management goals.

Special K Bliss bars have, 2 grams of fat, 1 gram of saturated fat and 0 grams of trans fat per serving. Each bar contains 0 milligrams of cholesterol, 70 milligrams of sodium and 9 grams of sugar.

Many women are finding that it's possible to enjoy a tasty snack and still remain committed to their weight-management goals.

New Hypertension treatment 'Takes the pressure off'

For the 72 million Americans suffering from hypertension, also known as high blood pressure, a new beta blocker is available for managing their condition. Bystolic (nebivolol), recently approved by the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA), provides doctors with an effective and well-tolerated treatment option for lowering high blood pressure.

High blood pressure is defined as blood pressure greater than or equal to 140/90 mmHg and is often referred to as the "silent killer" because it has no apparent symptoms. High blood pressure forces the heart to work harder than normal to pump blood and there is no cure, although diet, exercise, and medication can help manage the condition. The only way to detect hypertension is to have your blood pressure checked by a qualified health care professional.

"High blood pressure increases the risk for strokes, heart attacks, kidney failure, heart failure and death," explains Dr. Michael Weber, Professor of Medicine at the SUNY Downstate College of Medicine. "Treating high blood pressure dramatically reduces those risks and prolongs people's lives. That's why doctors work so hard with patients to reduce high blood pressure to acceptable levels."

Given the asymptomatic nature of high blood pressure, one-third of Americans who have hypertension are unaware that they have the condition, and of those who are diagnosed, 65 percent have not reduced their blood pressure to the normal range.

One reason that some patients have not lowered their blood pressure as needed may be the side effects associated with certain beta blockers, a class of medication often used to treat high blood pressure. For example, some beta blockers, such as atenolol and metoprolol, are associated with tiredness and reduced sexual activity, which can affect a person's quality of life. If experiencing these side effects, some patients may stop taking their medications as directed.

Bystolic works differently from older beta blockers and has a low rate of side effects. Like other beta blockers, it blocks the effect of the hormone epinephrine, also known as adrenaline. At doses up to and including 10 mg, however, it blocks adrenaline selectively in the heart. It also vasodilates or relaxes and widens blood vessels to improve blood flow.

"Bystolic represents a next generation beta blocker and is a valuable treatment option because it effectively reduces blood pressure across a broad range of patients and has a favorable tolerability profile, including low rates of side effects that are often associated with beta blocker use," explains Dr. Weber.

About Bystolic

Bystolic is a once-daily beta blocker for the treatment of hypertension. It can be used alone or in combination with other antihypertension treatments. For more information, talk to your doctor and visit www.bystolic.com

The FDA recently approved a new treatment for high blood pressure.

Editor's Note: Important Safety Information: Patients being treated with Bystolic should be advised against abrupt discontinuation of therapy. Severe exacerbation of angina and the occurrence of myocardial infarction and ventricular arrhythmias have been reported following the abrupt cessation of therapy with beta blockers. When discontinuation is planned, the dosage should be reduced gradually over a one- to two-week period and the patient carefully monitored.

Bystolic is contraindicated in severe bradycardia, heart block greater than first degree, cardiogenic shock, decompensated cardiac failure, sick sinus syndrome (unless a permanent pacemaker is in place), severe hepatic impairment (Child-Pugh > B), and in patients who are hypersensitive to any component of this product.

Bystolic should be used with caution in patients with peripheral vascular disease, thyrotoxicosis, in patients treated concomitantly with beta blockers and calcium channel blockers of the verapamil and diltiazem type (ECG and blood pressure should be monitored), severe renal impairment, and any degree of hepatic impairment or in patients undergoing major surgery. Caution should also be used in diabetic patients as beta blockers may mask some of the manifestations of hypoglycemia, particularly tachycardia.

In general, patients with bronchospastic disease should not receive beta blockers.

Bystolic should not be combined with other beta blockers.

The most common adverse events with Bystolic versus placebo (approximately ≥1% and greater than placebo) were headache, fatigue, dizziness, diarrhea, nausea, insomnia, chest pain, bradycardia, dyspnea, rash, and peripheral edema.

For important safety information and full prescribing information, visit www.bystolic.com.

Explore the health benefits of golf

Some people bill golf as the "lazy man's sport." Absent of running, catching, or throwing as is par for the course with many other popular sports, it's easy to see why it would be perceived in that way. But playing a round of golf can actually be very good exercise. So if you need any other excuse to hit the links, going with the health benefits of golf is something that can't be refuted.

One of the primary benefits of golf is the fact that if you forego the golf cart to travel from hole to hole, you're actually walking several miles around the course. Playing 18 holes of golf can involve traversing 3 to 5 miles. And as any avid golfer knows, most courses have a varied topography, meaning you could be climbing uphill and downhill, working several muscles in the process.

Walking is a low-impact cardiovascular activity that gets the heart pumping. Many doctors advise walking over jogging because it isn't jarring on the knees and feet. Walking is often an important part of a workout routine and can promote weight loss and a healthier heart. For golfers who do not have a caddy, carrying a bag full of clubs adds some resistance while walking.

Research has indicated that playing a round of golf has the same health benefits of a full 45-minute fitness class. It will burn fat and also improve your good cholesterol levels. Some estimates suggest that playing a round of golf and carrying your clubs can burn over 400 calories, while walking with a pull cart can burn over 300 calories.

Swinging clubs and putting are also physical workouts. Repetition can help tone muscles in the arms, back and shoulders. It may also improve flexibility and range of motion. Golf also helps to strengthen hand-eye coordination and balance. It can be a great way for older players to remain spry and active in a low-impact way.

Apart from the apparent physical benefits, playing golf also has some mental health benefits as well. Simply being outdoors on a beautiful day can boost a person's spirits. Provided you're not caught up with the competition aspect and gunning to win, golf can also be a relaxing endeavor that helps stress melt away. There's also the camaraderie of golf: spending time with friends and other players and engaging in conversation.

fitted with sliding glass doors that provide patio access. In the great room, another set of windows flanks the gas fire-place.

An eating bar and 8-foot ceiling defines the boundary between kitchen and nook. Counters wrap around three sides, and a spacious pantry is next to the refrigerator.

Laundry facilities, including cabinets, a deep tub and a small counter, fill the rear wall of a utility room that connects the two-car garage to the home's interior. A large coat closet and small powder room line the section of passageway closest to the front entry.

The owners' suite is downstairs, well away from the secondary bedrooms. A display niche just outside the master bedroom, and inside, a high ledge over the bathroom, are ideal for displaying art objects. Luxuries in the owners' bath include a double vanity, separately enclosed toilet, large shower, and spacious walk-in closet. The Jasper's two upstairs bedrooms share a bath. Stairway and second floor landing overlook the great room.

Green in the kitchen
Zap the germs in that sponge

Part of going green is reducing the amount of waste you generate in the course of daily life.

A good portion of the population has grown accustomed to a disposable mentality, merely tossing items into the trash when they no longer meet their needs, even if these items are not yet past their prime.

Sometimes the discarding of items is based upon the supposed health risks with continued use. Case in point, the kitchen sponge. Sponges are workhorses in the kitchen, scouring silverware, plates and glasses that do not end up in the dishwasher.

However, the average kitchen sponge can contain up to a million more germs than a toilet seat - even though the sponge continually comes in contact with soap and water. As a result, people tend to discard a number of sponges per month.

Since many sponges are made with plastics, a lot of trash is being generated that may not decompose in landfills.

However, you can prevent waste and germs at the same time. Simply wring out the sponge after washing it and microwave it for 30 to 60 seconds. The microwave will zap the germs.
